

MAGAZINE ARTICLE REVIVES CONTROVERSY OVER ROLE OF PIUS XII TOWARD NAZIS IN WAR

The controversy over the role of Pope Pius XII during World War II was revived when Look magazine published excerpts from "Pius XII and The Third Reich", a historical study by Saul Friedlander. Interspersed among the excerpts are the current comments of the Rev. Robert Leiber, a seventy-nine-year-old retired Jesuit priest in Rome, who served as confessor, secretary, and confidant to the Pontiff from 1925, says the New York Times, when he was Papal Nuncio in Berlin, until his death in 1958.

The Friedlander book, published by Alfred A. Knopf, Inc., shows that Harold H. Tittmann, who served as an assistant to Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative at the Vatican, informed the State Department in October, 1942, that the Pope was persuaded that any denunciation of Nazi atrocities in Poland and elsewhere would lead to the violent death of many more people and later bring down upon his head the blame of the German people for their defeat.

Mr. Tittmann added, however, that "Monsignor Montini [now Pope Paul VI] stated to me that the time may come when, in spite of such a grievous prospect, the Holy Father will feel himself obliged to speak out."

A visit of Cardinal Spellman of New York to Rome in the spring of 1943 was recalled in the findings.

The Pope was pleased that he could speak to Cardinal Spellman about the affairs of the American Church at that time, according to Father Leiber. Cardinal Spellman, for his part, let it be known at the Vatican that there was an impression among North American Catholics that the Pontiff was too easy on the Axis, Father Leiber recounted.

The cardinal indicated that the papal authority suffered somewhat among American Catholics as a result, he recalled.

"The Pope probably heard about that," the Jesuit said. "But he kept silent about it."

Father Leiber, even in retrospect, defends the policy of Pius XII. He said the Pope had no knowledge that the "final solution" — the extermination of Europe's Jews — had been settled upon as Nazi policy, reports the New York Times. The Pontiff, however, did everything in his power to help the Jews, especially to go to North and South America, according to his former secretary.

"He spent his whole private fortune for that purpose," Father Leiber said. "What he inherited himself, as a Pirelli, from his family."

The Pope, intent on maintaining official neutrality and avoiding the propaganda uses to which his words might be put by belligerents, according to Father Leiber, "protested against every wrong."

"He did not go farther," Father Leiber said. "He was right. In order not to appear to be taking sides, he would, have had to continue to protest until 1950."

The German-born priest was asked by Look to speculate on whether Pope Pius XII would have acted any differently during his reign had the Vatican Council been held at that time and had he faced the same problems.

Father Leiber granted that Catholic authority in Pius' time was focused more on the Pope than it is today. However, he said it was his opinion that "he would have acted exactly the same," says the New York Times. "The problems that concerned Pius XII lay too much in hard reality. It is not permissible to interpolate something from a later historical period into an earlier one in order to interpret it correctly," he said.

Israeli Finance Minister Makes Final Payment In New York On First Issue Of Israel Bonds, With Check For Over $31-Million

The Israeli Government made a final payment of $31,320,085 on the first Israeli bond issue floated in the U.S. Pinhas Sapir, Israel's Minister of Finance, turned over a check for the amount at a luncheon given by the Israel Bond Organization at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, in New York. It was made out to the Chase Manhattan Bank, the fiscal agent for the bonds, says Irving Spiegel in the New York Times. The money will be distributed to holders of coupon bonds which matured on May 3.

The check was the largest single amount ever paid out by the Israel Government to meet any of its financial obligations.

The coupon bonds are the last of the Independence issue, which produced a total of $145,523,800 during the three-year period that began May 1, 1951, when the first Israeli bond campaign was launched in the U.S. under the auspices of the Israel Bond Organization.

The interest on the issue, at 3.5 per cent a year, amounted to $51,771,518.24.

Mr. Sapir told 450 Jewish leaders, at the luncheon that his Government would also pay $33-million more for the redemption of other bonds falling due this year.

"All together," he said, "Israel will pay back to the United States Government, banks, companies, institutions and individuals in this country nearly a quarter of a billion dollars during this year." The total includes payments for goods and machinery and other commitments.

Mr. Sapir called the completion of the repayment of the first bonds "an important milestone in our drive toward economic independence," says the New York Times. He said proceeds from the worldwide sale of the bonds had stimulated the development of every important aspect of the nation's economy in the last fifteen years.

Among the major development projects were the building of the harbor at Ashdod and the development of the harbors at Haifa and Eilat, the establishment of some thirty towns in undeveloped regions of the country, the extension of the railway system to Beer-sheva and Dimona, and the exploitation of such natural resources as potash, phosphates, and copper.

In indicating the continued need for bond funds, Mr. Sapir said the development program for the next four years would concentrate on four central problems. He listed them as the continued development of the economic infrastructure, the consolidation of agricultural settlements, the development of industry and natural resources, and housing, health and education programs.

Among the specific projects will be a $20-million extension of the railway system and a $17-million plan to develop airports.

In addition, the program calls for building 40,000 to 50,000 housing units at a cost of $330-million and the construction of hospitals and other medical institutions at a cost of $100-million.

Abraham Feinberg, the president of the Israel Bond Organization, stressed the importance of economic development to the future of Israel, saying that "where there is economic dependence, there cannot be political independence," reports the New York Times. Other speakers included Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, vice-president of the bond group, and Samuel Rothberg, its campaign chairman.

Industrial Physicist Alters Aluminum Process

A Connecticut industrial physicist believes he has developed a major improvement in the basic aluminum-production process discovered eighty years ago. After fifteen years of research, Isaac M. Diller, of Westport, was granted Patent 3,244,604 for his method. He asserts that it could cut in half the amount of electrical power now required, says the New York Times. In 1886, Charles M. Hall succeeded in producing metallic aluminum by passing a direct current through a solution of alumina (from bauxite) in molten cryolite.

According to the Diller patent, the low-voltage Hall process, although modified, is still used, and the electric power consumed is about three times what in theory the requirement should be.

Mr. Diller's method is to release high-energy discharges of millions of volts at from 1,000 to 5,000 volts through the alumina solution. He reports that after each high-energy pulse a chain reaction builds up and the reduction of

Garment Maker Was 1 A Founder Of 1 Fashion Institute Of 1 Technology 1 Scholar Sees Life On Other Planets As Reasonable

Samuel L. Deitch, a retired garment manufacturer who had left school in his early teens but ended up as acting president of a college last year, died at University Hospital, in New York, after an illness of three weeks. He was seventy-six years old and lived at the Oliver Cromwell Hotel, 12 West 72d Street, New York, says the New York Times. Mr. Deitch was a founder in 1944 of the Fashion Institute of Technology, a training ground and research center for the garment industry's leading designers and fashion technicians.

The Institute, which occupies a modern, nine-story, glass and aluminum building on West 27th Street, south of the garment district, was chartered in 1950 as a two-year community college supported by State and City funds.

Mr. Deitch was a former president of the Institute's board. Last year, following the death of Lawrence L. Bethel, president of the Institute, Mr. Deitch served as interim president. The college, co-operating with the State Department and the Agency for International Development, sends teams of experts to foreign countries to teach modern technology in the mass production of women's wear and textiles.

At the Institute's twenty-first anniversary dinner last year, Mr. Deitch said: "It is sometimes embarrassing to attend academic ceremonies. When you are asked to list your academic honors, you have nothing to say."

Mr. Deitch retired a few years ago as a founding partner of Deitch, Wersha & Coppola, Inc., women's apparel manufacturers.

He was formerly president of the Industrial Council of Cloak, Suit, and Skirt Manufacturers; treasurer of the National Coat and Suit Industry Recovery Board; and of the Museum of Costume Art of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Mr. Deitch was born in Philadelphia, Pa. In World War I he was a private in the American Expeditionary Force; in World War

The existence of rational human beings on some distant planet is compatible with Jewish theology, according to a leading Jewish scholar.

Writing in the spring issue of Tradition, a quarterly journal of Orthodox Jewish thought, Rabbi Norman Lamm maintains that the discovery of intelligent creatures elsewhere in the universe, says the New York Times, "will deepen and broaden our appreciation of the mysteries of the Creator and His creations."

Rabbi Lamm is associate rabbi of the Jewish Center in New York, and visiting assistant professor of Jewish philosophy at Yeshiva University there. He is a founder and first editor of Tradition.

The challenge that confronts Judaism in regard to extra-terrestrial beings, the rabbi writes, can be divided into three parts: The question of the uniqueness of man; the uniqueness of the Creator; and the relation between God and man.

According to Rabbi Lamm, the Bible does not advocate the uniqueness of man.

"All human beings are created in the divine image, despite the fact that people are born unequal, some with superior endowments, and some with tragic poverty of both talent and opportunity," he notes.

"In the same manner, races of intelligent beings that differ from each other as radically as an idiot from a renowned genius may both be impressed by the divine image, by the summons to transcend the merely natural. If the image of the Absolutely One God can be impressed upon the manifold individuals within the human race, it can be similarly bestowed upon a multitude of races.

"The capacity for creation is the primary meaning of man's divine image. If, therefore, man will discover the secrets whereby living matter is produced from inanimate stuff, he will not be challenging God, but quite the contrary, fulfilling in an unparalleled manner his function of imitating God in

CINNAMON SPICE BREAKFAST CAKE

Bake it with Fleischmann's high rising yeast... the yeast that home bakers depend on. Start the habit of using Fleischmann's yeast when you bake at home. You'll be glad you discovered it.

CINNAMON SPICE BREAKFAST CAKE

Combine and set aside: 4 cups presifted all-purpose flour, 1/2 cup, cinnamon, 1/2 cup, nutmeg, 1/8 cup, cloves, 3/4 cup milk, 8 eggs, Blue Bonnet Margarine or Butter, 1/2 cup granulated sugar, 1-1/2 cups, salt.

Cool to lukewarm. Measure into bowl: 1/2 cup lukewarm water.

Stir in: 2 eggs, granulated sugar, Fleischmann's Fast-Rising Dry Yeast.

Let stand 10 minutes. THEN stir well. Stir in milk mixture, 1 egg and 1 egg yolk, well-beaten and 2 cups of the spiced flour. Beat until smooth. Stir in remaining spiced flour and additional flour (about 1/2 cup) to make a soft dough. Turn dough out onto lightly floured board. Knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl, grease top cover. Let rise in warm place, free from draft until doubled in bulk — about 1-1/4 hours. Punch down dough; turn out on lightly floured board. Shape into 18-inch roll; cut into 12, 1-1/2-inch pieces. Shape into balls; place in rows in greased 13 x 11-inch pan. Brush top with soft margarine. Cover and let rise as before about 1 hour.

Heat until foamy: 1 egg white, 1 tbsp. cold water.

TWENTY-SEVENTH REGIONAL ZIONIST CONVENTION WAS OUTSTANDING

By Y. Noy, of Central Division Office

The 27th Regional Zionist Organization of Canada Convention held on April 23 and 24, in London, Ontario, was termed by all delegates and observers (over 350 of them) one of the best ever held in this Province. From the opening session, chaired by Julius Hayman, national secretary, substituting for Irving Frisch, general convention chairman, who took ill, to the closing banquet celebrating Israel's Chai, everything was exciting and stimulating, and showed without doubt to everyone present that the Z.O.C. was vibrating with ideas, suggestions, and action, and is far from being a lifeless corpse, as some friends of the movement are trying to suggest from time to time.

The keynote address, "Can Success Spoil Zionism?" by Max I. Dimont, author of "Jews, God and History", was heard by some with raised eyebrows, but by the great majority was accepted with sheer delight. The ensuing controversy and reply by Wolf Perry, a member of the Jewish Agency executive, who delivered a fiery speech which was thoroughly enjoyed by the full house of delegates, who also responded heartily to the always provocative John R. Devor, first national vice-president of the Z.O.C.

This session, originally supposed to deal with all aspects of fund raising, with Samuel Kerner as chairman, turned into a real hot ideological debate. There was little time left to honour those who devoted so many hours of their time to the cause of our campaign on behalf of the United Israel Appeal and United Jewish Relief Agencies in their communities, but we managed to take their pictures and present them with awards. An innovation was the presentation of community awards to Oshawa, St. Catharines and Windsor, about which we are reporting separately.

The public relations luncheon, chaired by Max Goody, heard an extremely fascinating address by Rabbi W. Gunther Plaut on the subject "Public Or Unpublic Relations" in which the Rabbi suggested that the time has come to exert our democratic rights in a democratic state and to press for action wherever action is required to protect our minority rights and the ideas of freedom and equality; and wherever it is necessary to fight discrimination of any kind and incitement to hatred and persecution.

Mort Margolius chaired the following session on Zionist membership which was addressed by Sol D. Granek with Mrs. Bernard Mayer and John R. Devor as participants. David Peters, Q.C., presided over the last business session of the day at which several activity reports were given by Miss Anne Brown, Camps Shalom and Soleinu; Alex Chernick, (Keren Hatrubith) and Leon Sharon (Mas-

Licenses are being arranged under the patent for construction of a pilot plant. Earlier inventions by Isaac Diller, who has his own laboratory at Westport, include welding processes for cans, propellers, and pipelines, reports the New York Times. the asseration and exercise of his creative genius.

"Man, we may learn conclusively in the not too distant future, may no longer be regarded as the purpose of creation. But his actions and his destiny are of significance to a Creator who, in His infinity, is not bewildered by numbers.

"Man will be humble, but not humiliated. With renewed fervor he will be able to turn to God, whose infinite goodness and providence are not limited to, but certainly include, one small planet on the fringes of the Milky Way.

"We may yet learn that as rational, sentient, and self-conscious creatures, 'we are not alone.' But then again, we have never felt before, nor need we feel today, or in the future, that we are alone. 'For Thou art with me.'" sad). Stephen E. Berger presented the financial report. Miss Mary Batter reported on attendance. Jack D. Pearlstein, Q.C., reported on meetings of the constitution committee. David Peters, Q.C., presented resolutions. Daniel Monson of St. Catharines, presented the state of officers. The banquet was chaired by Milton Harris, associate convention chairman. The newly-elected president, Max Goody, spoke, and the evening was devoted to the celebration of Israel's 18th anniversary, with a musical program, and by dancing to an orchestra.

The convention had two breakfast sessions, one arranged by the Jewish National Fund and chaired by its Ontario chairman, Manny Rotman; and one with Dr. Mark Zimmerman, ou Oneg Shabbat at Bnai Moses-Ben Judah Synagogue was chaired by Irving Matlow with Y. R. Yaron and M. Aviner debating a program for Western Aliyah; and a Young Adults leadership session, chaired by H. Wayne Tancbaum with a presentation by J. A. Lyone Hoppner. The past-president of the ZOC, Central Division, Harry Zifkin, was unable to attend because of illness. The convention coordinator was Isaac Siskind, of London. The reception for delegates was arranged by the London Jewish Community Council president, Harold Vaisler. Israel Film Festival was arranged by David Poller, of Toronto, assisted by Jack Lesser, of London.

Three Ontario Jewish communities, Oshawa, St. Catharines and Windsor, received awards for their efforts, in the 1965 campaign, at the regional convention. The presentations, on behalf of the Joint Fund Raising committee, of the Canadian Jewish Congress, and the Zionist Organization, central region were made by Samuel Kerner, vice-president of the Z.O.C., Central Division, in charge of the United Israel Appeal.

Framed lithographs by Israeli artists were presented to Sidney Lazarus and Mel. Soffer for the community of Windsor; Harry Tomarin and Daniel Monson, for St. Catharines. The Oshawa presentation will be made at a later date.

Windsor received the award for consistent and regular remittances in 1965, to the Canadian Jewish Congress, United Jewish Relief Agencies, and Zionist Organization of Canada. United Israel Appeal, "according to the allocations formula for distribution of funds from a combined campaign to local and overseas needs."

St. Catharines received the award for the highest percentage increase in their annual campaign income, during the calendar year 1965; and Oshawa, for the fastest wind-up campaign, in 1965, including the remittance of funds to the beneficiaries.

Elected were: Max Goody, president; Harry Zifkin, immediate past president; Samuel Kerner, regional vice-president; Stephen E. Berger, treasurer; Mrs. M. Smolack, honorary secretary; Dr. George J. Liban, executive director.

ance is getting heavier from day to day. This year challenges, therefore, the American Jewish community to greater and more sacrificial giving, so as to ease at least in the economic sphere the heaviness of the load which Israel carries on its shoulders.

The year 1966 also presents a special challenge to the Zionist Movement. It is true that we paved the way from "Der Judenstaat" as a book to the "Jewish State" as a reality, but a Movement cannot live for too long by indulgence in past glories. This decade demands of us contributions in many areas, but specifically in one which only we can do, namely, Aliyah immigration, from the West.

We must concentrate all our efforts to motivate hundreds and thousands of American Jews to expose themselves, more and more, to the miracle of Israel, beginning with more frequent visits, greater number of our students at Israeli universities, richer programs for our young people for living in Israel for a year or two, and, finally, to influence as many American Jews as possible to join forces with our Jewish brethren in Israel on a permanent basis in the upbuilding of the State.

This, then, is the demand of the hour and a historic opportunity for our Movement to fulfill its mission. In order to undertake this task and develop it successfully, we need harmony within the Zionist family, closer cooperation and greater unity. Only a unified Zionist Movement can undertake as formidable a goal and make its contribution to the Reality of the State as we have so nobly done to the Vision of the book.

It is in this spirit that we of the American Zionist Council extend our heartiest Mazel Tov to the State of Israel on its eighteenth birthday. May the popular magic attached to the number "18" symbolize for Israel the blessings of life and stability, security and well-being for all its citizens, partnership with the Jewish people, and genuine friendship with the nations of the world.

the constitution. For eighteen years the Convention has not been acted upon and thus this country remains outside the roster of nations that have outlawed the crime of mass murder of an ethnic group or race. Ratification by the United States of Genocide Convention is particularly vital at this time when the Arab countries have reiterated their vow to destroy the State of Israel and thereby finish Hitler's job.

Congressman Emanuel Celler, chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives, recounted the history of the martyrdom of the entire Polish Jewry, declared that the Warsaw Ghetto Fighters "died for all Jews." He said: "Even though there was no hope of survival before the might of the Nazi demons, the Warsaw Ghetto Fighters, men, women, and children, took many Nazis with them to death. These Jews died as soldiers of freedom. They fought against desperate odds.

"They went forth through the valley of the shadow. They paid the great price, the price of precious life, for the ideal of freedom. They made the supreme sacrifice for the cherished ideal of the dignity of man. They bared their breasts to bullet and fire to preserve their faces as Jews."

Pointing to the photographic reproduction of the monument standing on the site of the Warsaw Ghetto in memory of the Jewish fighters, Congressman Celler said: "It is small tribute to their fortitude and faith. It is for us American Jews, who were physically untouched by Hitler's murderous gangs, to honor these immortal ones. They died for all Jews. They set us the example of great faith, that we might well follow. Let us never forget that."

Rabbi Edward T. Sandrow, president of the New York Board of Rabbis, declared: "Historians would do well to include the Warsaw Uprising among the decisive battles of history." When Nazis were confronted by men and women and children who fought with bare fists, who though dazed and hungry refused to howl to brute force and broken gangsterism, they must have had a moral effect on all the enemies of Hitler. They confounded their enemies. They weakened their morale.

"The fighters of the Warsaw Ghetto exposed to the world the pseudo-racism, the anti-democratic inhumanity of Nazism, thereby giving courage and will to America and France and Britain and all freedom loving people in the 1940's to the end that victory was finally assured. The Warsaw Ghetto Uprising will some day take its place with the Normandy Invasion and the Battle of Stalingrad as key turning points in the defeat of the tormentors of mankind."

Abram Solomon, chairman of the Anniversary Committee and president of the Manhattan Zionist Region, who presided, declared: "The longer the time that separates us from the most tragic events, the more evident becomes to us Jews the scope of the destruction of European Jewry. It is vital to remember this at a time when the world prefers to forget."

Fifteen Thousand Gathered In Times Square In New York To Commemorate Twenty-Third Anniversary Of Warsaw Ghetto Uprising

Fifteen thousand persons attended the twenty-third anniversary observance of the Warsaw Ghetto uprising at a large open air rally in Times Square, New York. The famous thoroughfare was renamed "Warsaw Ghetto Square" for the day, which coincided with the Hebrew date of the 27th day of Nisan, proclaimed as Annual Day of Remembrance for the ghetto fighters and the six million Jews massacred by the Nazis.

The rally was held under the auspices of the Zionist Organization of America and co-sponsored by thirty-five national and metropolitan Jewish organizations. Principal speakers were: Senator Jacob K. Javits, Congressman Emanuel Celler, Jacques Torczyner, president of the Zionist Organization of America; and Rabbi Edward L. Sautlow, president of the New York Board of Rabbis. Abraham Salomon, chairman of the Warsaw Ghetto Uprising Anniversary Committee and president of the Manhattan Zionist Region, presided.

The day was officially designated as Warsaw Ghetto Day in proclamations issued by Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller and Mayor John V. Lindsay. The Mayor's proclamation was read by Commissioner Charles Mordkoff. Cantor David Kusevsky chanted "Vishu", memorial prayer for the dead, and ghetto songs were rendered by a youth choir.

The resurgence of neo-Nazism in West Germany and the failure of U.S. ratification of the Genocide Convention of the United Nations outlawing the destruction of national, racial, or ethnic groups were the themes of most of the addresses. Strong pleas were also made for equal treatment of the Jewish community in Soviet Russia.

Senator Javits called upon the assembly to remember that "what happens to one minority happens to all minorities." The chief characteristic of the Jewish faith had always been its demand for justice. We must honor the memory of the six million Nazi victims by continuing the fight for justice for all, for our brethren in Soviet Russia; for the security of the State of Israel, and for equal rights for all citizens in America.

Jacques Torczyner, president of the Zionist Organization of America, warned that "the gravest danger facing the world today is the strengthening and reunification of Germany. The victories scored by the extremist rightwing, Nazi-infiltrated parties in the recent municipal elections in Bavaria and Hamburg are a warning to all those who have been lulled into the belief that Germany is our only faithful ally in continental Europe." The speaker urged upon the assembly that "in paying tribute to the memory of the heroes of the Warsaw Ghetto let us pledge that we will never forget the heinous crimes committed by the German government and the German people."

At the same time Mr. Torczyner, of the 100,000 member Zionist Organization of America, appealed to the United Nations to "adopt an international convention outlawing the application of any statutes of limitations for crimes against humanity. Large numbers of Nazis responsible for the massacre of hundreds of thousands of Jews and other civilians during World War II have found refuge in other countries who refuse their extradition. In many countries existing statutes of limitations are providing immunity to many notorious Nazi war criminals."

In his address, Jacques Torczyner strongly criticized U.S. failure to ratify the Genocide Convention of the United Nations in spite of the fact "that sixty-nine sovereign nations have already signed this convention adopted by the U.N. which outlaws the destruction 'in whole or in part of national, racial, religious or ethnic groups'."

The speaker pointed out what he termed the ironic fact that Soviet Russia, which is one of the signatories of the Genocide Convention, had introduced an amendment during the 1948 debate on the Genocide Convention in the General Assembly, to extend the definition of the Convention to include "cultural genocide," embracing deliberate destruction of the language, religion, or culture of any national, religious, or racial group. The Soviet amendment was not adopted as it was then felt that the protection of these rights belongs to the field of Human Rights.

Mr. Torczyner said that "the failure of the United States Senate to act on the ratification of the Genocide Convention challenges all understanding, since the United States U.N. delegation originally signed this Convention in 1948. President Truman then sent that document to the Senate for ratification as required by

U. S. ZIONISTS HEAR DENIAL FROM INDIAN GOVERNMENT OF REPORTED SNUB TO ISRAEL; PRESIDENT SAYS INDIA YIELDS TO ARAB PRESSURES

A statement by Shri Dinesh Singh, Minister of State for External Affairs of India, denying reported discourtesy shown to President Zalman Shazar, of Israel, by the Indian government during his stopover at Calcutta at the end of April, was read by Jacques Torczyner, president of the Zionist Organization of America, before several hundred Zionist leaders at a meeting in New York of the Organization's national executive committee.

The statement, issued in New Delhi, was transmitted through the Consulate General of India in New York to the ZOA president, who on March 29, in a public address, strongly criticized the Indian government for its pro-Arab stand and discourteous treatment of the Israeli President during his stopover in India en route to Nepal.

Mr. Torczyner made his criticism on the occasion of the recent visit to the U.S. of Mrs. Indira Gandhi, Prime Minister of India. He then charged that during the Israeli President's stopover in New Delhi no Indian representatives came to greet him at the airport and the President of Israel was forced to remain in the plane. In Calcutta, where President Shazar had to spend the night, the police reportedly did not attempt to restrain demonstrations of Arab students outside the President's hotel. Mr. Torczyner at that time also took occasion to describe India's pro-Arab attitude wherever Israel is concerned as "a policy that ill becomes her."

Herman L. Weisman, of New York, chairman of the National ZOA executive committee presided at the meeting which was also addressed by S. Z. Abramov, Israeli leader and member of the Knesset (Parliament), and Rabbi Armond E. Cohen, religious leader of Park Synagogue in Cleveland, Ohio. In his statement, the Indian Minister of External Affairs denied any discourtesy towards the Israeli President during his stopover.

Shri Dinesh Singh, in his statement, further said that the small group of Arab students who demonstrated at the entrance of the hotel were "promptly arrested by the police and a case was registered against them for house for works of art, but a miracle country in all civilization. It will be a great state, for the strength of a state does not depend upon the number of its citizens, but on their intelligence."

Thus Herzl's prophecy seven decades ago, His vision found fulfillment and the dream its realization in May of 1948. It was the instrumentality of the Zionist Movement which alone was able to translate this dream into reality. What we are celebrating this year, then, is the two-fold miracle of the vision of the deed, of the dream and its fulfillment fifty-two years after the publication of "Der Judenstaat," close enough to Herzl's prophecy.

The success of the vision, against public opinion, against the rich and the mighty, against the assimilatory forces, against much of the Jewish leadership of the time, and even against his own personal friends, almost parallels the miracle of the State-building, against all odds in the political sphere, against the surrounding Arabs, against some "good advice" of some friendly governments and even of prominent Jews within our ranks. It is the Zionist Movement which alone made possible the triumph of both the Dream and the Deed, the Vision and the Action, the Book and the State.

This being the case, the year 1966 represents the greatest challenge to the American Jewish community, generally, and the Zionist Movement, specifically.

Israel is, indeed, the miracle country of which Herzl spoke, but our Sages warn us not to rely on miracles. Israel has made tremendous steps in immigration and integration, in economic stability and political influence, in the building of the roads and the factories, the cities and the settlements. But with all these spectacular achievements, the Jewish State faces many serious problems.

Because of the East-West conflict, the balance of arms is gradually being shifted in favor of the Arabs, and the financial burden of the young State in the redressing of the imbalfor violating Section 144." The text of the statement by the Indian Minister of State for External Affairs follows:

"The question of Israeli President's transit through India was first raised in April 1965 by the Director of the Asian Division of the Israel Foreign Office. He had then informed the Government of India that the President would transit India with a stopover in Delhi 'entirely in a private capacity' and 'that he would not of course be expected to be treated as a State guest or to receive any special attention.' The Israeli Consul in Bombay subsequently informed the Government of India on the visit which was then scheduled in September and requested necessary transit and stop-over facilities. The Consul was informed of the functional arrangements that would be made for the transit at Palam and stopover at Calcutta of the Israeli President on his visit to Kathmandu.

"Subsequently, the visit was postponed by the Government of India because of the Indo-Pakistan conflict.

"In February this year the Israeli Consul informed the Government of India that the postponed visit would take place in March and requested appropriate facilities. He was informed that similar functional arrangements including security arrangements for Heads of States would be made available both at Palam and at Calcutta as conveyed to them earlier for the postponed visit in September.

"The scheduled flight of Air France carrying the Israeli President made a 40 minute halt at Palam in the early hours of the morning of the 14th and took off for Calcutta. The VIP room at Palam was reserved exclusively for the President and arrangements had been made for serving refreshments but the President did not disembark from the aircraft.

"At Calcutta where the Israeli President made a night's stopover, there was a demonstration by a small group of 11 Arab students at the entrance to the Grand Hotel. The demonstrators were promptly arrested by the police and a case was registered against them for violating section 144. No harm resulted to the President or to his party.

"The Government of Israel was fully aware since August, 1965, of the arrangements that would be made for the transit and stopover of the President on his visit to Nepal. There was, therefore, no question of any discourtesy having been shown to the Israeli President."

Commenting on the statement by the Indian Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Torczyner asserted that "the same statement, was not received favorably even by Indian public opinion as expressed in criticism by members of India's Parliament and press. It was pointed out that, in the first place, steps should have been taken to prevent a hostile demonstration against a Head of State of a sovereign nation."

Mr. Torczyner also pointed out that "when Israel's late President Yitzhak Ben Zvi, in 1960, made a similar stopover in India; he was greeted with due honors by high officials of the Indian Government. Since then India has apparently succumbed to Arab pressure."

"Recently we learn," Mr. Torczyner further said, "of India's refusal last week to accept Israel's offer of aid to help alleviate India's famine, made in response to an appeal to many countries by U.N. General Secretary U Thant," a refusal which Mr. Torczyner said was "motivated by India's desire to placate the Arabs."

Mr. Torczyner also asserted that while India has recognized Israel de facto she has refused heretofore to establish full diplomatic relations with Israel in compliance with Arab pressures.

"From India," Mr. Torczyner said, "whose greatest leaders were Gandhi and Nehru, and now the daughter of Nehru, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, who are among the most enlightened and spiritually advanced 20th century personalities, one would expect policies that follow the highest idealism."

S. Z. Abramov, member of the Knesset, Israeli Parliament, and chairman of the America-Israel Friendship League, on a speaking tour in the U.S., strongly favored encouraging American Jews to voice

The Children Who Were Shot Or Gassed Were The Lucky Ones

The fate of children confined in Hitler's concentration camps has been documented for Germans in a new book.

Written by a German-Jewish journalist, Inge Deutschkron, the book is entitled "Denn hier war die Hölle" ("For Here Was the Hell"). Miss Deutschkron's documentation was taken principally from testimony at the recently completed Auschwitz trial and other trials of former Nazis, writes Philip Shabecoff, in the New York Times. The writer spent much of the last 20 months reporting on the Auschwitz trial for an Israeli newspaper.

"During the trial," she said, in an interview, "I saw that people cried whenever the fate of a child in Auschwitz was described. I decided to do this book because I thought the sufferings of children would open the hearts of people grown indifferent because of their own suffering or of their own prosperity."

About 1.2 million Jewish children under sixteen years of age died in the Nazi concentration camps — some victims of gas chambers, some of brutality and neglect.

The documents in Miss Deutschkron's book include testimony indicating that the children who were shot or gassed were the lucky ones. Many were left to die of starvation, freezing or sickness, and no medical help was provided.

One witness described the arrival of one hundred and fifty Jewish children in Auschwitz. "It looked like a large kindergarten class," the witness said. "One child had a large red ball, and a game started right in front of the crematorium."

Just like a kindergarten teacher, the witness recalled, a female Nazi guard clapped her hands and told the children to stop playing because it was "time to take a bath."

Then the guard ordered the children to fold their clothes neatly and march into the gas chamber and crematory. One little boy, less than two years old, was too little to climb the steps, says the New York Times. So the guard took the child in her arms and carried him into the chamber.

The guard came out alone, the witness said. "Twenty minutes later, the ventilators of the crematory started their ugly noise. The clothes and the red ball remained outside."

"For Here Was the Hell" is illustrated with drawings made by children in the concentration camps. The children drew what they saw: men and women hanging from gallows, being shot, whipped, or clubbed; pictures of crematories, barracks packed solid with humanity, long lines of corpses, and people crying.

Miss Deutschkron was never in a concentration camp, although many of her relatives died in Auschwitz and other camps. She was hidden in Berlin throughout the war.

"Twenty-five families helped keep my mother and me hidden and alive during the war," she explained. "Because of those people, I thought there were people in Germany who could understand what had happened, who could learn. That is why I came back here after the war instead of going to Israel," reports the New York Times. But Miss Deutschkron is becoming convinced that she was wrong about Germany, and she is thinking about giving up her citizenship and becoming an Israeli.

their views in terms of criticism and otherwise on vital issues and developments in Israel. He said that "while politically Israel is a sovereign state and its policies are subject to determination by its nationals only, we must be mindful of the fact that Israel is also a Jewish State and as such is of direct concern to the majority of the Jewish population who dwell beyond the confines of the State." He maintained that the first breaches in the doctrine of "non-intervention" were made by non-Zionist organizations who made representations to the Israeli government concerning the treatment of the Arab minority in Israel and the separation of religion and state.

The Israeli leader, a noted figure in the Liberal Party in Israel, emphasized that it is the obligation of American Zionists not to remain silent on issues involving the type of society emerging in Israel. Mr. Abramov also urged upon Zionists to play a wider role in American communal affairs, in moulding the future of the American Jewish community. "For the sake of American Jewry and for the welfare of the State of Israel."

Rabbi Armond E. Cohen, of the Park Synagogue in Cleveland, a prominent leader of the Conservative Rabbinate, presented a gloomy picture of what he termed the progressive disintegration of Jewish life in the U.S. as a result of the decline of Hebrew and religious education. "Relatively few, very few," he said, "can any longer read the Hebrew prayer book, let alone read it with comprehension. Only a pathetically small number have had the vaguest glimpse of the sweep of Jewish history and most do not have the foggiest notion of their own origins as a people."

In support of his evaluation of current trends in Jewish life, Rabbi Cohen cited the rate of intermarriage which, he said, now "reaches epidemic proportions"; and the sparse attendance in Jewish synagogues.

Rabbi Cohen called upon American Zionists to serve as the catalytic instrumentality that "will strengthen Jewish religious life in all the denominations, that will marshal support for Jewish education in all communities and in all kinds of schools, that will evolve a program to re-awaken the spark of Jewish social solidarity and loyalty."

Rabbi Cohen further urged that "we must move on to the American campus to ferret out nuclei of young Jewish intellectuals to teach them the meaning and potential of Jewish peoplehood."

He concluded that "it was and remains true, and the truth must be re-emphasized, that Israel, the people, and Israel, the faith, are inextricably one, and we will know that the Jewish people has been sewn to itself and has ended its own self-alienation and that Jewish peoplehood has been achieved again when the individual Jew will no longer be able to justifiably categorize himself as a Nationalist, as a Hebraist, or as a Religiousist."

The meeting voted to hold the 70th annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America in Israel on July 9-25, 1967. The Convention will coincide with the 70th Anniversary of the founding of the World Zionist Organization by Dr. Theodor Herzl, father of modern Zionism, in 1897.

ISRAEL INDEPENDENCE DAY MESSAGE ON ISRAEL'S EIGHTEENTH ANNIVERSARY

By Dr. Max Nussbaum, chairman of the American Zionist Council

We are celebrating, this year, the seventieth anniversary of a book and the eighteenth anniversary of a State. The book is Theodor Herzl's, "Der Judenstaat," published in 1896, and the State is, of course, Israel, founded in 1948. The two celebrations, this year, are no mere coincidence. There is a historic relationship between the book and the State, a relationship of cause and effect. For without the book there might not have been a State. The book is Dream. The State is Fulfillment. And the road that leads from "Der Judenstaat" to the Jewish State bears the historic name of Zionism.

In moving words Theodor Herzl describes his own vision: "For some time past I have been occupied with a work of infinite grandeur. At the moment I do not know whether I shall carry it through. It looks like a mighty dream. But for days and weeks it has possessed me beyond the limits of consciousness; it accompanies me wherever I go, hovers behind my ordinary talk, looks over my shoulder at my journalistic work, disturbs me and intoxicates me. It is still too early to surmise what will come of it. But my experience tells me that even as a dream it is something remarkable, and that I ought to write it down . . ." Thus reads the entry at the beginning of Herzl's "Diaries" in the summer of 1895.

And he continues: " . . . The title: 'The Promised Land.' (He later changed it to "Der Judenstaat" — "The Jewish State.") . . . the Promised Land, where at last we can live as free men on our own soil and die in peace in our own homeland. Where we, too, can expect honor as a reward for great deeds; where we shall live at peace with all the world, which we shall have freed through our own freedom, enriched by our wealth, and made greater by our greatness . . . By means of our state we can educate our people for tasks which still lie beyond our horizon. For God would not have preserved our people for so long if we did not have another role to play in the history of mankind . . ."

And, then, under the impact of the publication of the book: "My five hundred copies came this evening. When I had the bundle carted to my room, I was terribly shaken. This package of pamphlets constitutes the decision in tangible form. My life may now take a new turn . . . I believe that my book will have readers. The people will believe my words, and the governments, no less. There will be prayers in the synagogues for the success of our wonderful project and in the churches as well. The Jewish State is a world necessity, and therefore it will arise . . . In fifty years' time the Jewish State will already be in existence . . . The Jewish State will become something remarkable . . . not only a model country for social experiments and a treat-
